- Community Vision
- Partnership
- Community-Based Issue Analysis
- Action Planning
- Implementation and Monitoring
- Evaluation

LA 21- A Review

By PhD candidate, Hardev Kaur (now Dr)

- Mostly top-bottom approach
- Local Authorities still play a domineering role in the LA 21 programme
- Viewed by participants as “functional” rather than “normative”
- Most participants do not feel themselves as partners but as beneficiaries.

- Location and time for meetings were problematic and not conducive
- Large numbers of observers, but no active participation and involvement
- Language gap

Some Suggestions for the Future

- Define the role of the community and expectations of LA 21 programme; it is not a “one-off” programme
- A more meaningful role for residents association as stakeholders
- Instill and practice principles of good governance

- Local councils should play the role of facilitator and practice “bottom-up” approach
- Compare what is going on in other countries with their LA 21 programmes
- Increase funding for building capacity of the community groups
- Ministry should re-affirm its commitment to LA 21
